SCHOOLS ARE VISITED

Gazette Representative Makes a Tour of Schools and Finds Much to Interest Him in Both Upper and Lower Grades

The Gazette Representative was personally conducted the other day, by the Great High Mogul of Alexandria's principal industry, through the many departments in which its greatest assets are being shaped and pruned and fitted for the most important of all life's tests— the first plunge into the great game of life.

The G. R. was a little abashed at the prospect. It seemed to him that a fellow who had to carry all the details of the education of nearly nineteen hundred white, and four hundred or so of colored children, must be wiser than anybody else he had encountered in a long time.

The High Mogul is named Sweeney. He was found in his office in the Lee school talking to some little girls about vaccination certificates and other horrible details that are necessary to prevent one youngster from going out and getting some undesirable sort of disease and then giving it away ,free, to lots of other little youngsters, whose parents wouldn't have any use for it at all.

Then there was a lady, who was a little upset, who wanted to run the school system her way; and who became very indignant when she was told that there are probably three or four thousand other people in Alexandria would like to do the same thing. She was asked, very gently, what she thought would be the result, if she had her own way, and where the youngsters who are hungering and thirsting for the three R's and all their modern trimmings would get off at if all these would-be school superintendent and City School Board members had their way. She was one of those people, however, who answer one question with another question or an entirely irrelevant statement.

She said, in effect:

I know Misters E. M. Anderson, J. Gilbert Cox, Dr. S. H. Lunt, Luther H. Thompson, P. M. Bradshaw, S. L. Monroe William Helmuth Carroll Pierce, R. M. Colvin, T. Calvert Perry, Clifton Howard, and Dr. Samuel H. Moore, and if any of them know any more about children than I do I'll give them the five I've got right now.

She knew all the members of the school board, all right

But at this point Mr. Sweeney very tactfully used the G. R. as an excuse to get her off on her way elsewhere and we started to go through the grades. We began at the very beginning, as is proper in an educational expedition, and immediately the High Mogual became just a plain, ordinary everyday sort of a chap that had a heart, you suspected, a little bigger than a duck egg, Why? Well, just as soon as we opened the door of the first room, a simultaneous grin grew on forty chubby little faces and, with one accord, as many voices cried:

"Pl-eeease tell us a story Mis-ter Sweee-eeney."

And in every other room that we entered until we got to the High School, where they are getting so near the beginning of the test and their natural exuberance of youth is tinctured with, mayhap, a little apprehension, or they have learned to control their feelings better, it was the same—Mr. Sweeney was urgently urged to tell a story. But one thing was apparent, and it seemed a very important thing. In all the departments in all the schools there was an air of good cheer. There was none of that heavy strained look that used to be associated with education; and which is still present in many of the schools the G. R. has visited. One reason for this, undoubtedly, is that the schedules of studies are greatly diversified. The toddlers especially do not study any one thing too long, and they have frequent recesses in which they can stretch their chubby little toddle-pins. And, better still, the teachers of the lower grades are experts. They keep on teaching the lower grade scholars, understanding them, their peculiar little mental kinks and so on, year after year, laying the foundations on which shall afterwards be laid all the higher ru-

MERCHANTS MEET

And discuss Many Matters Pertaining to Boosting Alexandria—Will Have Buttons Made and Talk of Supporting Gazette.

Members of the Retail Merchants Association held their regular bimonthly meeting in their rooms, at 415 Prince street last night. It was a 'Booster's' meeting. One of the principal points of discussion was concerned with the plans to bring the Government Armor Plant to Alexandria.

The committee which had been appointed to consider this project by the Merchant's Association rendered a favorable report anent the activities of the General Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. It was the concensus of opinion of the men present that the organization go on record as a body that it was their aim to assist in any manner possible in the bringing of the plant to this city.

A committee was also appointed to make arrangements to secure 4,000 buttons bearing the inscription "Boost Alexandria, Retail Merchant's Association."

President Joseph E. Schwarmann, called the attention of the members to the probable return of the Alexandria Light Infantry Company, in the near future and suggested that a committee be appointed to help the city to give the men a fitting reception on their return. This proposal met with unanimous approval and the following were chosen: Samuel W. Pitts, John D. Matter, Raymond Blumenfeld, William F. Smith, and Dr. Thomas B. Cochran.

Among other matters considered was the proposal of R. E. Knight, that the Association give its united and hearty support to the Gazette. Mr. Knight stated that through its aid in making the paper stronger the members would thus help the city.

There was a large and interested attendance. In the absence of the secretary, R. B. Washington, Miss Catherine Petty, performed his duties

COMING HOME SOON

Alexandria Cit-Soldier Tells of Camp Life and Visit of General Funston—Homeward Bound in near Future

Last night our brigade had a "call to arms." Taps are at eleven o'clock, and the stragglers had just gone to sleep when the call sounded at eleven fifteen. In ten minutes we were marching. We marched about a mile and a half and then waited for the rest of the brigade. We were the first ones out.

Of course, merely a midnight call to arms was not exciting enough in itself so we had to have a storm. The skies had been cloudy all the evening but just as we started the wind began to blow furiously, and after we started the rain poured. It came down in torrents and drenched us through to the skin. The rain kept up for about an hour, and then the mud! It was fierce!

We got back to camp about half-past one, only to find everything soaked wet. However my cot was dry out my blankets were soaked. I took a shower and rubbed up a good circulation, put on dry clothes and my sweater, and slept in them, but nearly froze without a blanket. It is a wonder we don't get pneumonia from some of these storms, but it does not seem to effect us at all.

On account of the "call" our usual Friday hike was called off and reville was an hour later. We have had no drills today at all.

We had quite a distinguished visitor today. Major General Funston arrived and paid a hurried visit to each of the camps around here. In all probability we will have to go to the Fort tomorrow and be reviewed by him.

A railroad man in the General's party told Lieut. Col. Creghill we have already been routed, and that we will travel in touring cars, and not in day coaches. He said, however, that he didn't know whether we would leave this year or next. We try to comfort ourselves with the thought that they would hardly make such definite arrangements for such an indefinite date.

We must be going to leave shortly, for everything seems to point that way.

I am enclosing a copy of a poem printed in the Brownsville Sentinel which we think pretty good.

GERMANY AND IRELAND

The Kaiser knows that, sooner or later, he will be forced to evacuate Belgium. He is looking for some pretext to enable him to do so and at the same time save his face. He has suddenly announced himself a member of the Fenian Brotherhood, and his heart now goes out for bleeding Ireland. The "Fatherland," the German Emperor's mouthpiece in the United States, says:

Germany did not discover Ireland until 1913. She did not discover England until 1914. Germany did not sympathize with Ireland, because she did not know Ireland. Today Germany knows her friends. She knows her enemies. We do not believe that Germany will ever come to an understanding with England, until the fate of Ireland is settled. Germany will not give up Belgium, unless England liberates Ireland. If Eng- will indemnify Belgium.

The announcement that the haughty and despotic Hohenzollerns have sympathy for Ireland in her struggle for centuries against the iron hand of England is enough to make a horse laugh. According to our Teutonic contemporary, she has suddenly realized that there is such a place as Hibernia, although the Emerald Isle was known to Julius Caesar. The Irish are among the best people of the earth, and their blood permeates a large percentage of the people of this great republic. It is useless to repeat the fact that Great Britain was about to grant home rule to Ireland when the Kaiser precipitated the terrible war which is devastating some of the fairest portions of the globe. The Hohenzollerns have for ages been uninterested spectators of the struggle of a people until now, finding themselves compassed by many enemies, they are appealing to a liberty-loving nation to aid them in perpetuating a despotism which has for its object the obliteration of all traces of democracy and the making of Berlin the capital of the planet. It is unnecessary to say that the Irish people, will not be deluded by Germany, who is resorting to every device to keep her house of cards from collapsing.

ORDER IN ALEXANDRIA

A representative of the Gazette, as usual, entered the station house this morning and asked, "What have you this morning?" "Nil," was the response. This was disappointing to the knight of the quill, as he had made no notes during the early hours and had "banked" upon obtaining some fact or text for an item from the proseeding of the Police Court. The news paper man involuntarily asked, "What have you all been doing during the past twenty-four hours? He had relied upon some police incident or suggestion for an item." "Been keeping order in the city," was the laconic reply.

The above is a fact and one which all citizens should rejoice in realizing. The police force of the city at present consists of nineteen privates, a chief and three sergeants—twenty-three men in all. The "beats" of the men cover twice the area they did eighteen months ago, or since parts of Alexandria and Fairfax counties have been annexed, but notwithstanding this expansion of territory the police patrol the beats of the city proper as well as the area embraced in the annexed territory, and it is a common occurrence to present a blank blotter to the Police Justice when he appears at nine o'clock in the morning.

As was stated recently in the Gazette, the majority of the police force at present are young men officered by seasoned Veterans, and the good order preserved in Alexandria is due to the vigilance of all. So far as known on rivalries or cliques, which unfortunately impaired the effeciency of the force at times, now exist. All seem to realize that what is the interest of one is the interest of all, and they vie in the principle that they are members of a fraternity which should work with a will and with one mind toward the public good.

RAILROAD ON PAPER

R. W. Latham was elected president of the Washington, Alexandria and Georgetown Railroad fifty years ago today.

The above appears in a Richmond paper which is publishing extracts from its files of 1866. It recalls a chapter in Alexandria history and one which was of much interest at the time.

The Alexandria Canal, running from Georgetown to Alexandria, had been constructed and operated about ten years before the outbreak of the war between the states. During the four years hostilities the canal which had made Alexandria a coal shipping depot, remained idle, and the government having seized the Aqueduct Bridge at Georgetown, used it in connection with a military road to Arlington throughout the war. When peace dawned the people of Alexandria clamored for a restoration of the canal and the Aqueduct Bridge. The government was slow in meeting the request of our people, but H. H. Wells, Peter Quigley and W. W. Dungan having obtained temporary control of the canal, the trio being union men, the first-named having been military governor of Alexandria during the war the property was eventually restored to its owners.

But the Aqueduct Bridge had been worn out by the military, and before the canal could be utilized a new structure had to be built. After this had been accomplished the canal was put in operation and boats from Cumberland, Md., began to arrive and depart as in former days.

About this time it was suggested that the firm of Wells, Quigley and Dungan were looking after their own individual interests more than those of Alexandria. The formation of a company followed and the community believed that the aim of the trio was to utilize the berme bank or the bed of the canal for a railroad.

The road was not built, however, and the firm several years later sold the Aqueduct Bridge to the government. The canal was eventually sold in tracts to the highest bidders.

Peter Quigley was a prominent financier fifty years ago, W. W. Dungan had been agent of the Adams Express Company in Alexandria during the war, and, Wells was known as General Wells. He was from Michigan. He ran for Governor of Virginia, in 1869 as a republican, but was defeated by Gilbert C. Walker, a native of Binghamton, N. Y., but who had for several years been a banker in Norfolk, After his term as Governor expired he became one of the Congressmen form Virginia.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS

For the benefit of those who think that Eugene Debs is still the Socialist Party it might well to state that the man who is running it now is one Allan L. Benson.

The principal reason most of Alexandria's rivals for the Armor Plant seem to have to advance is: "We want it."

October 28 has been designated as Woodrow Wilson Day, but everyday is a Woodrow day hereabouts.

Statistician claims that one family in every eight in the United States possesses an auto. At the prices some of them have been marked down to it seems that everybody oughta have an auto.

Why, we wonder, weren't the movie chaps at that Taft-Teddy meeting? But perhaps they had an advance tip that the atmosphere would be too chilly to work their machines.

DAUGHTERS OF REVOLUTION

The twentieth annual conference of the Virginia Daughters of the American Revolution opened in Roanoke yesterday with an address by Mrs. William Cumming Story, of New York, president-general of the national organization. After telling of the achievments of the organization in the last two years, she touched on the Belgian relief work, saying as a result of the Daughters' labors $14,000 had been subscribed to the fund. She made an earnest plea for the purchase of Monticello, and related the difficulties encountered by those backing the movement.

The fight is developing over the election of a state regent. Friends of Mrs. Benjamin D. Purcell, Richmond are urging her to allow her name to be used in opposition to that of Miss Alethea Cornell, Norfolk, present regent, who has served one year. Norfolk and Wytheville have asked for the next conference. The conference is said to favor the seaport city.

Chronic Dysentery.

"An old gentleman of this town who was almost at the point of death with chronic dysentery, some time ago, and had given up all hope of recovery was induced to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. One dose stopped the discharges, and after taking a few more doses he was completely cured," writes J. L. Boer, West Manchester, Pa. Many residents of Boer's Station can testify to the truth of the above and were aware of this old gentleman's sufferings. Obtainable everywhere.

Modernized Chiropractic has put more so-called incurable Diseases on the list of curables than any other drugless method known.

When applied to the study of the nature, cause and elimination of disease, it becomes a science and philosophy which is able to locate and analyze, unerringly, the cause of disease, and provides the best method known at the present time for removing the cause.

The method is original, unique, adequate, and is the most prompt in bringing about a cure. It is absolutely safe.

The basic principles of Chiropractic are in no way at variance with the established facts of Anatomy and Physiology, the two branches of medical science which are the foundation of all others.

NEWS OF THE DAY

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the Vice President, was so ill in Elkhart, Ind., that a physician was called to attend her. The symptoms were said to be those of ptomaine poisoning.

James Allen, aged 64, of Ashtabula, Ohio, last night confessed that he killed his bride of three days. Allen married Mrs. Anna H. St. John, of Mayfield, N. Y., on September 19, three weeks after he saw her advertisement in a matrimonial paper. She was found dead September 22. She was 55 years old. In his confession Allen declared that his wife tried to rob and kill him and pleaded self-defense. He said she tried to steal his money the day after the wedding.

Nearly 250,000 persons in six cities and a score of villages in the capital district of New York were without local traction facilities yesterday. The strike of the unionized employes of the United Traction Company, which began Monday in Albany and Rennselaer, spread yesterday to Troy, Cohoes, Watervliet and Green Island. Not a trolley wheel turned in any of the cities. Interurban service was also seriously affected. There was no disorder.

Violence, which in ruthlessness surpasses that of the most riotous days of the New York traction strike, has begun to mark the war between the big milk dealers and the up-State farmers. Irving P. Waite, of Wingdale, lies in a Duchess County hospital at the point of death. Men lying in ambush behind bushes set upon him while he was trying to take a load of milk to the station. He was beaten into unconsciousness. Thousands of gallons of milk have been emptied in the roadside ditches of New York and New Jersey and at many points ribbons of red in the white rivulets testify to hot hand-to-hand fights.

As a result of the Roumanian invasion of Bulgaria, Field Marshal von Mackensen has ordered the evacuation of the captured fortresses of Rutrakan and Silistria by the Bulgarians.

In a battle fought from behind rocks and trees near Bagdad, in Shelby county, Ky., yesterday afternoon, Roy Dickson, alleged kidnapper of 12-year-old Catherine Lethig, was shot dead by a posse.

The widely exploited sympathetic "walkout" of trades unionists in greater New York in aid of the striking carmen, which was supposed to have started Wednesday, had not materialized last night. The police declared they were unable to find any evidence of general strike.

In a fit of jealous rage over his failure to win the young wife of his lifelong friend and benefactor, Angelo Leonotti, 24 years old, shot and almost instantly killed the woman Mrs. Rosine Sanangela, aged 22 years, yesterday, in the kitchen of her home, in Philadelphia, and later committed suicide by blowing out his own brains. The double tragedy occurred after the woman had spurned Leonotti's attentions and threatened to inform her husband, who had brought the man from Italy and befriended him.

Dr. W. P. Knight was shot and killed by Byron Hill, of Rutledge Ala., yesterday morning on one of the principal streets of Luverne Knight, it is claimed by Hill, insulted his wife.

Miss Helen Morton Bayly, daughter of Mark Morton, yesterday in Chicago, won her suit for divorce from Roger Bayly, the well-known Virginia horseman, to whom she was married in June 1914, The charge she made was that of desertion, but it is said that the decree was granted virtually by mutual consent. Mr. Bayly did not contest. The marriage of Helen Morton was the culmination of a series of adventures in which she engaged after she had run away from her father's home.

Cattle, hogs and sheep are now being grown in the South to such an extent that the Southern Railway has found it necessary to establish a daily fast live stock service from points in Western North Carolina, East Tennessee, and Southwest Virginia to eastern and southern markets and to Virginia feeding grounds; and from Alabama points to the St. Louis, Louisville and Cincinnati markets. This is in addition to the daily fast service from St. Louis to Atlanta to handle the inbound movement of horses and mules for the Southeastern and Carolina territory.

By an overwhelming majority, it is learned, the clergy of Richmond is opposed to the abbreviated form of the Ten Commandments which will be considered by the general convention of the Episcopal hurch, to be held this year in St. Louis, from October 11 to November 1. Of the seventeen rectors of Episcopal churches in Richmond ten are outspoken against the proposed change. Five are noncommittal. The other two could not seen as they were out of the city.

Wiley H. Webb, an engineer on the Norfolk and Western Railway, was shot and instantly killed yesterday morning near Elliston, Montgomery county, when a shotgun in the hands of S. McNew, a fireman, of the same road, was discharged accidentally. The men had camped in a patch of woods near Elliston for a squirrel hunt. They were leaving camp, when McNew picked up his gun, which exploded, the charge entering Webb's face and causing instant death.

THE RAMBLER.

I'm always hunting for things that seem to have anything of joy about them. Perhaps I'm what's called a 'Bug' on the subject. Konwing this a friend of mine, the other day, sent me a book called 'The Psychology of Joy.'

I'm not very strong on psychology. I think its one of those words that people who are half-learned use to cover up with. I know a fellow that's been studying the psychology of psychology for several years. He expects to write a thesis about it some day. If he ever asks me to read it I'll do something awful to him.

But to come back to the Psychology of Joy. I waded through page after page that made my forehead look like a section of a washboard. I found bunches of words that I didn't know Nat Webster had ever invented. (Did you know it was Nat? There are heaps of intelligent people who think that Daniel wrote the dictionary. Now that he's dead they blame him for lots of things.) Well what was the result? In several hundred pages the learned professor who wrote the book told me what our simple and rugged forefathers put into one line. And that was: "Keep your stomach in good condition and fear the Lord."

That's all! If you think it over you'll find it a very good recipe for right and happy living.

I came across a fellow reading a magazine last night. Like myself he doesn't look as if he had a great deal of anything to spare, whether intelligence or worldly wealth. There's an old axiom that runs: "Never judge a book by its cover." It holds good nowadays just as much as it did when it was coined several hundreds of years ago. God, you know, is the great publisher, and it is He who puts the human books in the covers He has designed for them. If you laugh at the chap that has some mal-formation you are really laughing at the work of the Deity. Or, since I don't want to mix up in any high brow discussion as to heredity and original sin or that sort of thing, let us say that no human being could be put into any sort of a cover without His permission. And so you'd be laughing at what he had permitted, for some profound purpose.

I made the remark that I considered it astonishing that so many people read so many magazines.

"They do it instead of boozing," he retorted.

"I don't quite get you," I came back with.

"Why," he went on. "When I was a young fellow most of the chaps in my crowd used to hang around the saloons. There was hardly any other place for them to go, in bad weather, especially. The churches didn't take as much interest in young people in those days. And there weren't any of the clubs and organizations that there are now so many of. But today, even if a fellow isn't interested in those things, he is in reading. He's been educated up to it. Instead of going to some place just to waste his time, he reads. I think the magazines have done more for temperance and to keep young people out of mischief than anything else. "He paused for a moment and then went on:

"And another thing: Men are coming to see that the fellow who drinks is a fool, that's all. It don't get him anywhere— its bad business."

When I came to think it over I wasn't surprised after all. There's a whole lot wisdom in almost every body. They haven't been trained in the art of expression, that's all. Its a pity that they haven't, I think. Often, at night, you lay and dream great dreams, don't you? I think, in that period of half lethargy of sleep, when you're just about to merge into unconsciousness you're like almost everybody else. You have imaginings of greatness. In the dark your spirit boldly adventures forth and does deeds of 'derring do' that you would quail at thought of in the day-time.

Its a pity that the sunlight kills so much of these imaginings. And even the commonest man and woman must have had in the quiet night, gems of thoughts which they have cherished for a little space and then permitted to float away, unrecorded, into the limbo of lost things.

HELPLESS AS BABY

Down in Mind Unable to Work, and What Helped Her.

Summit Point, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Belle Emey, of this place, says: "I suffered for 15 years with an awful pain in my right side, caused from womanly trouble, and doctored lots for it, but without success. I suffered so very much that I became down in mind, and as helpless as a baby. I was in the worst kind of shape. Was unable to do any work.

I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and got relief from the very first dose. By the time I had taken 12 bottles, my health was completely restored. I am now 48 years years old, but feel as good as I did when only 16.

Cardui certainly saved me from losing my mind, and I feel it my duty to speak in its favor. I wish I had some power over poor, suffering women, and could make them know the good it would do them."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, it will certainly be worth your while to give Cardui a trial. It has been helping weak women for more than 50 years, and will help you, too.

Try Cardui. Your druggist sells it.

426 KING STREET ON SATURDAY, OCT. 7, 6.00 P. M.

with a full and up-to-date line of men's, boy's and children's clothing, shoes and furnishings.

Some people say in their advertising, "The Largest Store in Town," some even get down on their knees covering every speck of ground with a yard stick to let people know how many square inches they cover. But it is all nonsense. It doesn't matter whether we are the largest or the smallest store, as long as we give the best values for the money. trade will come our way, and that is what we are going to do. We are not in the habit of advertising just to get the people to our store to give them something else; or use the term "We Are Out.' What we advertise we have; and the price will be your witness. Come! Investigate and thereby substantiate our statement.

I have not a $35 suit for $10, neither has any one else, unless they stole it. One dollar invested in the bank makes you only 4c in twelve months. One dollar invested in your fall or winter supply at this opening saves you 30c

In order to get the public to inspect our very complete and stylish line of fall and winter clothing, shoes and furnishings we are going to offer you a few inducements that will make even the strongest sceptic sit up and take notice.

Read the following carefully and at the same time ponder. If you do this we have not only gained a customer but a friend as well.

We have no defects to conce al; no dead ones to revive; no old ones to get rid of; just fresh, clean, honest goods.

WARNING! Owing to the extensive advertising of this opening many unscrupulous merchants may try to lure you by fictitious signs. Do not enter until you see the sign and name—THE LEVINSON CLOTHING CO.

WARNING! You are not just to your purse unless you investigate. I am not going to quote any prices here. Printer's ink is not what you want. Quality and price is what you are interested in. So follow the crowd Saturday night.

WARNING!

Thanking you in advance f or al patronage and trusting our goods will merit a continuance of your trade and that our efforts will please you.

Yours truly THE LEVINSON CLOTHING CO.
